MARYVILLE UNIVERSITY

To Whom It May Concern:

At the request of Maryville University in St. Louis, MO, I am pleased to confirm the Missouri Department of Higher Education's (MDHE) statutory responsibilities pertaining to the operations of independent institutions in the state of Missouri.

The MDHE performs a significant role in planning, establishing goals, and monitoring the performance of Missouri's system of higher education. MDHE's statutory responsibilities include statewide strategic planning and coordination of the state's higher education system. For Missouri independent institutions, the MDHE reviews and comments on new degree programs, coordinates the collection of the Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS) survey data for the U.S. Department of Education/National Center for Education Statistics and approves institutional participation in state administered student financial assistance programs. The independent institutions also follow MDHE policies regarding transfer of academic credits and articulation of degree programs and student residence requirements.

The MDHE does not license or authorize institutions to operate in the state of Missouri except for certain proprietary schools, unaccredited degree-granting schools, and out-of state institutions offering on-site instruction in Missouri as provided by Missouri statutes.

Please contact the MDHE if further information is needed.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Robert B. Stein".

Robert B. Stein, Ph.D.
